Biography

Robert was born about 1268. He passed away in 1303. According to Sanders and Complete Peerage, his son Robert (3rd Lord Tateshal) died only a few years after him and died without issue leaving his aunts (the sisters of the Robert in this profile) as heirs: Emma, Joan and Isabel.^{[1][2]}

He was the second baron and younger son.^[3]

He married Eve de Tibetot, daughter of Sir Robert de Tibetot, Constable of Porchester Castle, Nottingham Castle, & Norwich, Keeper of the Town of Nottingham, Justice of West Wales and Eve Chaworth, before 10 November 1280; Both were about 13 years old.^[4] Robert de Tateshal, 2nd Lord Tateshal died circa 28 July 1303.^[5]

Notes

A son, Robert, age 15 or more, was apparently his heir,^[6] but died a few years later, before reaching majority.^[7]

Andrew Lancaster

Maybe the son John belongs in another family or branch. He can't be a legitimate son in this one because there was no heir.
